BELGRADE, March 24.—Determined to bow to German demands despite threats of civil warfare, Yugoslavia's harassed government reformed its ranks today and prepared to align the nation with the Axis powers.

But even as Regent Prince Paul succeeded in refilling the cabinet, menacing demonstrations spread through the country, while pro-Fascist Croats were blamed for a bombing outrage.

An official announcement said three cabinet vacancies caused by resignations last week of ministers who opposed the projected Axis tie-up, had been filled this morning and the cabinet crisis thus was terminated for the time being at least.

Scheduled to Sign Pact Amid these dramatic events a special train stood ready at the Belgrade railway station to take President Paul to Berlin.

PA NEWS OBSERVES

First spring-like Sunday of the year brought out a huge amount of auto traffic. Most important highways had an unusual amount of traffic yesterday.

On Saturday changes in the dialing for most all important radio stations will be made. The changes are not very great, but most stations will be found at a new reading on the dial.

Pa News noted a couple of outboard motors on boats on the Shenango river, near the Harbor Bridge, yesterday, apparently signalling the opening of the season for boating on that stream.

Pymatuning lake is still completely covered with ice, autoists made a visit to that district yesterday report.

Quite a number of fishing enthusiasts could be seen along the streams of the district yesterday. They were bait fishing for suckers. The trout season does not open until April 15.

On some of the hills on highways in the district the ashes placed on them to prevent skidding, have dried out and been ground to dust to such an extent that great clouds of dust arise when a car goes speeding up or down the hill.

In a sheltered spot, in the 400 block of East Washington street, Crocuses were in bloom, on Sunday morning.

BRIDGEVILLE STRIKE BELIEVED CAUSE

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, March 24.—C. I. O. President Philip Murray took a personal hand in the five-week-old strike at the Bridgeville plant of the Vanadium Corporation of America today just 18 hours after William S. Knudsen, director of the office of production management, paid him a surprise visit.

Murray, it was learned, met this morning with "six or seven" members of the C. I. O. local at Bridgeville which called the strike in defiance of orders issued by Regional Director Anthony J. Federoff. Repeated efforts by Federoff to arbitrate the dispute were rebuffed by the local union.

The strike, officials said, was holding up products vitally needed in the national defense program.

Two Blasts Wreck Oil Refinery Still

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—With a roar heard miles away, two explosions today destroyed a newly constructed still at the Gulf Refining company's plant on the banks of the Schuylkill river in South Philadelphia.

Fire which followed the blasts shot flames 200 feet in the air and cast heavy clouds of smoke over the area. Although a number of workmen were hurled to the ground by the detonations, none was injured, police reported.

Pending an investigation, company officials declined to give out any details of the cause of the explosions which broke windows in a number of nearby homes. It was learned, however, that the destroyed still consisted of three towers, and company and city firemen confined their efforts to preventing the flames from spreading to huge storage tanks.

LONDON, March 24.—Long-distance British bombers hammered Berlin during the night and attacked other targets in northwestern Germany while other R. A. F. planes pounded Calais on the Nazi-occupied French coast, London authorities revealed today.

In addition, it was stated, R. A. F. planes bombed the German submarine base at Kiel and the city of Hanover. Heavy explosions were observed at Hanover—so heavy that they could even be seen by British airmen simultaneously attacking Berlin.

A brief air ministry communiqué revealed the attack on Berlin and other parts of the Reich. Authoritative quarters said the assault on the German capital was "very substantial but not particularly heavy."

Pope And King To Seek To Save Italian Empire Regardless Of Fascism

By EARL REEVES

LONDON, March 24.—Italy of the Vatican and the quiral—as distinct from Italy of Premier Mussolini and the somewhat battered Fascist party—is aligning a great spring peace offensive. From behind a veil of censorship and secrecy I obtained further details today of the plan whereby Pope Pius XII and King Victor Emmanuel are collaborating in a determined effort to save Italy from destruction and preserve the House of Savoy even if it means dissipation of Fascism.

Italians Fear Raids In contrast to Germany, which firmly believes itself exempt from "blitz" attacks such as England gets, the Italians have been terrorized by even mild Royal Air Force raids.

The assaults against Genoa and Taranto, which could not be hidden or minimized, had a terrific effect upon Italian morale.

From the most remote villages everywhere in the kingdom came peace petitions. These were not directed to the Fascist government but were sent through parish priests to the Vatican and the king, begging that some action be taken "to prevent horror, destruction and death" from descending upon Italy.

Wave of Apprehension There is thus a wave of apprehension across the face of Italy.

Reliable informants tell me that a week of steady British bombing would send the country screaming for peace at any price, for cancellation of the alliance with Germany, for the overthrow of Fascism.

Italy is swiftly coming to resemble a German province. Nazi "tourists" technicians and experts are establishing themselves firmly in key spots throughout the nation and are trying strenuously to revive flagging morale.

Nevertheless, news of what is actually happening has filtered through to the people. Drastic new (Continued On Page Two)

Three Thousand March Into Plant

Seven Hundred Police On Guard

Workmen Return To McCormick Plant In Chicago Despite C. I. O. Strike

POLICE GUARD ALL PLANT GATES

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, March 24—Watched by several hundred police and CIO pickets and guarded by an estimated 700 policemen, more than 3,000 men marched in a body into the McCormick plant of the International Harvester company in Chicago today to reopen the huge factory despite a CIO strike.

Most of those to enter the plant were said to be members of a newly formed A. F. L. union which sponsored the back-to-work movement. The McCormick plant, employing 6,100 men, had been closed since February 28 as the result of a strike called by the CIO farm equipment workers organizing committee.

Police Protection
Police at the scene under orders to "protect any man who wants to go to work." Under personal supervision of police commissioner James P. Allman, they surrounded the entire plant, gathering in force at each of the ten gates and standing about five feet apart between the various entrances.

A similar reopening of the Harvester plant at Richmond, Ind., strikebound for a month, was scheduled to take place Sunday. Under a court injunction obtained by the Harvester company on Saturday, the CIO was limited to 10 pickets at each gate, but hundreds of strike sympathizers lined streets near the plant and booed and shouted "scab" at the returning workers.

March Into Main Gate
The AFL workers marched into the main gate of the plant, where the largest body of police was on duty. They had assembled earlier in the union headquarters, from where they paraded in quiet ranks into the factory. The procession was led by Irving Brown, an AFL organizer.

While the marchers filed into the plant, the police kept the CIO observers moving along both sides of the street. They were not permitted to form large groups. The concentration of 700 policemen, headed by all the department's ranking officers, was the largest in the history of the city ever to be ordered out on a single detail.

Police estimated the number of returning workers at between 3,000 and 3,500, which would be slightly more than half the 6,100 men employed at the factory when it was closed by the management.

C. I. O. Strike Remains
The CIO strike, however, remained in effect. It was called by the FEWOC in a dispute involving union recognition, wage increases, and other grievances.

A last minute effort to arbitrate the strike failed early this morning. David Roadley, federal labor conciliator, conferred with Powers Hapwood, national officer of the CIO for eight hours until one a. m. today. Twice, earlier in the strike, company and union negotiations in which Roadley participated ended in failure.

AFL backers of today's back-to-work march charged the CIO strike was called illegally. They claimed the FEWOC had only a small minority of members among employees of the plant. The CIO, however, maintains it is the legal bargaining agent for the factory workers, and alleges the AFL men going back to their jobs are "strikebreakers."

BRITISH BOMBERS IN ATTACK ON BERLIN; OTHER NAZI CENTERS

German announcement said R. A. F. planes during the night attempted to attack Berlin and that some penetrated as far as the center of the city, dropping incendiary and explosive bombs on residential quarters that killed and injured "several civilians." The Berlin communiqué added that "slight damage and a number of fires" also resulted from the attack.

Short But Sharp
The attacks on the German-held "invasion port" of Calais were "short but sharp," British authorities said. Flares were dropped on the French side of the channel and these were followed by flashes of heavy bomb explosions which were visible from the English shore despite a bank of mist over the French coast.

German aerial activity during the night almost to a standstill in comparison with last week's heavy raids.

An air ministry communiqué said only a small number of German planes operated during the night and that a few bombs were dropped on eastern England, damaging houses and causing some casualties.

Meanwhile, British newspapers published additional details of the havoc wrought by last week's two successive German raids on Plymouth, revealing the southwestern English seaport and naval base had taken a terrific pounding.

These reports also revealed that hospital trains had been sent to Plymouth to remove wounded too numerous for local hospital facilities and that rescue crews were still digging amid the city's ruins for further victims.

BRITISH CARGO SHIPS CARRYING SUPPLIES BEING ARMED BY U. S.

ships will be carried out by this government under the lease-lend bill, which gave President Roosevelt the power to arm as well as repair British ships in American ports. Armament on all British merchant ships carrying war supplies to England will be strengthened as rapidly as the American government can make it available. Some of the larger British cargo vessels, which now carry one gun in the stern, will have another mounted in the bow, while some of the smaller ships will get anti-aircraft equipment, including pom-pom guns, to help ward off German aerial attacks as they near the English coast.

Less Vulnerable
Although the increased naval armament on the British merchant ships will not protect them against submarine torpedo attacks, it will make them less vulnerable to attack by German submarines operating on the surface. In addition to arming British merchant ships, authoritative quarters believe President Roosevelt may soon take steps to shorten the distance which those ships have to come to obtain American war supplies. The possibility is that American ships will be used to carry the supplies to Halifax, where they could be transhipped to British vessels for the voyage through the more dangerous European combat zone.

YUGOSLAVIA WILL BOW TO DEMANDS MADE BY GERMANY

Minister Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Marcovic to Vienna, where they are scheduled to sign a pact tomorrow making Yugoslavia a member of the Axis-Yugoslavia alliance in a non-military capacity.

An official announcement said they will leave for Vienna tonight. Under the new set-up, Mikhail Constantinoic returns to his post as justice minister, while Dragutin Ikonit assumes the portfolio of social welfare minister and Tanay Nikitovic that of agriculture minister.

Political circles made no secret of their view that the latter two men are considered "weak personalities."

Germany Objected
Delay in reconstruction of the cabinet resulted when Germany objected to reinstatement of Constantinoic, who had resigned to express his opposition to acceptance of the German demands. Further negotiations were necessary before the Nazis agreed to his return to the government.

The cabinet crisis was settled after Regent Prince Paul and the premier, after an all-night conference, persuaded the democratic-minded Serbians that Yugoslavia had no choice but to sign the pact as demanded by Germany.

As drafted specially for Yugoslavia, the Axis treaty omits a military commitments. It was stated that Constantinoic was greatly impressed by Cvetkovic's arguments and therefore finally decided to remain in the government.

Ikonit and Nikitovic both are members of the Serbian farmers' party.

See Disintegration
Belgrade, March 24—Harried Yugoslavia threw in her lot with the Axis powers today but chose a formula that may lead to disintegration of the kingdom.

The government of regent Prince Paul, faced with heavy Nazi pressure and the threat of civil war, decided to send negotiators to Vienna to sign the Italo-German-Japanese tripartite pact.

But Yugoslavia did not sign as a unit. "There will be separate documents for Serbia, Croatia and Slovenia, the principal components of the kingdom."

So far as is understood, a compromise has been reached under which purely military aspects will be eliminated from the agreement.

Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and foreign minister Alexander Cincar-Marcovic will sign for Serbia. Vice-premier Vladimir Macek will sign for Croatia.

Father Fran Kulovec will sign for the Slovenes.

"Most of the great navies have a slightly different caliber (of guns) from the others, and that is true of the British as well as ours," said Knox. "We are trying to bring them closer together, however, and we have succeeded in doing that to a considerable extent, but still the British use, for instance, 47 where we use a 5 inch."

Armament of British and American planes, Knox said, is rapidly "coming to a common level." The great divergence, Knox said, is in small arms and machineguns.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told the committee, that under the lease-lend program the present system of placing separate British and American orders will be ended.

"Once this bill becomes law, the entire matter of placing contracts, the types of material to be manufactured, and the inspection service to be carried on during this period of production will all be coordinated," said Marshall.

SENATE LIKELY TO PASS BRITISH AID BILL TODAY

of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox and Director of the Budget Harold Smith.

One of the first acts under the lease-lend funds bill, a high official said, will be placing of orders for 5,000 airplanes. The orders are expected to be placed chiefly with American firms now producing British aircraft. Important British orders will be completed early in April, thus making it possible for a half-dozen factories to accept "huge new orders."

To Seek Slash

Senator Nye (R., N. D.), foe of the Roosevelt program, planned to make a fight to slash the $7,000,000,000 fund in half, but defeat of the move was generally predicted by senators.

"I think I shall offer an amendment to reduce the amount to $3,500,000,000," Nye said. "Let's wait and see the needs of foreign countries and our ability to produce the goods. Maybe time will reveal all too clearly that we are sinking money in a bad hole."

"The sum I propose would last for a year. From information given the Senate appropriations committee, it would seem impossible to spend the entire $7,000,000,000 in one year."

The secret hearings of the appropriations subcommittee on the bill, Nye said, indicated that "there is mighty little security" available from foreign governments.

Since title on lease-lend goods will not pass until delivery, a sudden stoppage of the European war might find the United States with $3,500,000,000 worth of arms on hand for which Britain would have no obligation to pay, he added.

"Of course, this is not all to the bad," Nye continued, "because the testimony is that most of the production would be of types which could be used by the United States."

The North Dakotan said he will propose that $3,500,000,000 in new taxes be raised for each of the next two years to pay for the huge program.

The $7,000,000,000 bill includes $2,054,000,000 for airplanes and parts, $1,343,000,000 for ordnance, $629,000,000 for ships, $260,000,000 for miscellaneous equipment, $752,000,000 for agricultural and industrial commodities, and $200,000,000 for testing and repairing foreign ships.

POPE PIUS XII AND KING SEEK PEACE FOR ITALY

wartime restrictions are gradually showing them that Italy is losing the war.

Empire Crumbling
They are coming to know that the Italian empire is crumbling and that while German rations are being increased by conquests, Italy's are being steadily cut.

In the midst of this dangerous situation and with the public in a sombre mood, King Victor Emmanuel has been received in private by Pope Pius no less than three times since the Greek and Libyan campaigns began.

Editor's note: It was announced in Rome today that Pope Pius will receive the dowager Duchess of Aosta, the former Princess Helen of France and a cousin by marriage of the king, on Thursday.

In their last conference, the pope and king reviewed the situation on all fronts and conceded that the outlook is exceedingly grave. King Victor Emmanuel, incidentally, is also in continuous touch with other high church dignitaries, notably papal secretary of state Luigi Cardinal Magliano.

Fear War Extension
On the eve of fear extension of war in the Balkans, the Vatican's efforts—particularly in the United States—bear on the necessity of stopping the conflict before the whole world is engulfed. Hence a great peace canvass among Roman Catholics, especially Irish elements, in the United States.

By "higher ecclesiastical order," the subject of Lenten and Easter sermons is peace.

Editor's note: In connection with prediction that a week of steady bombing would crumble Italian resistance, the British government recently warned Italy that Rome would be attacked from the air if Italian planes raided Athens. Thus far both of these ancient cities have escaped attack.

KING OWNS PORPOISES

If caught in British waters by a British ship, porpoises become the property of the crown, because they are considered royal fish.

CASE FOR CAUTION BY CONGRESS

THE text of the agreement with Canada to proceed with the St. Lawrence River seaway and power project, as transmitted to Congress, places this doubtful proposal in no better light. Although defense considerations are now urged as justification for this costly enterprise, it is to be noted that the Canadian Prime Minister, just before giving his evidently reluctant assent, pointedly questioned the advisability of such a vast commitment at this time, when both countries are concentrating their efforts on speedy defense production.

Since at least four years will be required for completion, and probably much longer, this cannot be regarded as an emergency defense measure. Steam-electric plants can be built in a fraction of the time. Diversion of labor and materials from defense production constitutes another powerful objection. Planes, tanks, guns and above all ships, are needed, as the President has said, "now."

An essential feature of this program, as applied to materials, is the priorities system. An analogous principle might well be applied to all new and ambitious proposals put forth in the name of defense. Regardless of their merits, are they imperative? Will they make a timely and necessary contribution to the program? If they fail to meet this test, let them be rejected or postponed.

Some opponents of the St. Lawrence project assert that it would be a defense liability and a tempting target for enemies' attacks. Since the Panama Canal, the most vital waterway link in our defense system, is especially vulnerable because of its locks, the proposal in Congress to make it a sea-level canal is better worth considering says the Philadelphia Inquirer. A majority of an international board of engineers originally favored building a canal without locks. It is a question for expert judgment, but if feasible would offer a sounder investment for the taxpayers' money than the dubious St. Lawrence plan.

LAND PRODUCTION

Although the Census Bureau did not attempt to interpret its finding that it now takes 47 acres less to provide food for the average human being than it did in 1850, it is assumed that it is a case of land producing more, not of people eating less. Notwithstanding the perplexities of the agricultural problem, it is not likely that "Let's eat" will soon be a mockery in this country.

The average farm of today has 174 acres and provides food for 21.6 persons, whereas the average farm of 90 years ago had 203 acres and produced food for 16 persons. There is another point worthy of note—the average farm of 90 years ago just about had its 16 mouths to feed.

MORALE AND EMPIRE

Italian military hopes grow dimmer daily with one defeat after another. Capture by the British of Jijiga only 70 miles from the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad may presage the end of Italian empire in East Africa. Penetration of that line by the British, after their victories in Italian Somaliland, would be almost a death blow to Italian aspirations, for the Italians are on a desperate defensive in their colony of Eritrea on the edge of the Red Sea. The taking of Eritrea would leave Italian troops in Ethiopia completely surrounded.

Mussolini's plan to drive across Egypt to the Suez Canal ended in abject collapse, and even cost him an important section of his own Libya. His effort to invade Greece was a failure and the Greeks are marking up new gains in Albania. Italian army morale must be at an increasingly low ebb. Mussolini has been dictator of Italy since 1922, but his promise to restore the "grandeur that was Rome" is a pledge the Italian people must be beginning to realize he never can fulfill.

Meanwhile the isolation of Italian forces in Ethiopia must mean their ultimate surrender, and Britain, again the mistress of the Red Sea, will be able to concentrate more of her navy in the Eastern Mediterranean and release more and more of her African troops for the Balkan war. It long has been sensed that the Italian armies have had little heart for the campaigns in which they have been engaged.

All the pompous Mussolini speeches and Gaudy outgivings in the press cannot long conceal the facts from the Italian armies and people.

AIR WAR PARITY

The authoritative Nazi commentary service, in explaining its boast of a Nazi superiority of three to one over Britain in the air, virtually confessed that by the end of 1941 there will be parity.

Allowing for production of 15,000 war planes in the United States, export of one-half of them to Britain and equality in production between Britain and Germany this year, the agency said that "as a result of difference in flying time, Britain will still be outnumbered three to one."

This is, indeed, a new time. The boast no longer is that the end of the year will find Germany stronger than Britain in the air on a numerical basis, but merely for the reason that British planes have to fly farther to bomb German cities than Nazi planes from the so-called invasion base have to fly to bomb British cities.

Since the greatly outnumbered RAF was able to retain mastery of the air over Britain last fall, the agency does not even suggest that the Nazis can wrest it from the greatly augmented British air arm. Its claim that the Nazis are able to strike harder in the air at Britain than Britain can strike at Germany is obviously correct. Distance does count in bombing raids, and Britain is at present at a great disadvantage in its counterattacks.

But Britain has one advantage: It has proved it can take it, and race toward parity in the air while it is doing it. Germany has one great advantage: It has instilled the idea of superiority into the minds of its people, and it is doubtful whether they would stand up under one-third of the beating Britain is taking.

Budgeted cost of defense and aid to the democracies is now $35,000,000,000. War, the jade, is certainly an extravagant hussy.

In Virginia 1,000 young women will be "drafted" as dance dates for soldiers. Life in the Army is becoming more attractive every day.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

SASSY CHILD WILL SASS

"Dear Dr. Myers: We have received much help from your daily articles. I had several years' preparation and experience in kindergarten work and try to apply the methods in raising my own two daughters; one is past four, the other almost two.

"With the older girls, who is nervous, full of energy, very observing, comprehends quickly, cooperative, and very affectionate, we have successfully overcome a series of behavior problems such as tantrums, biting, hitting, the 'NO!' habit, and others. However, at present we want to know how to break her of 'talking back'—I mean plain 'sassiness.' She started last summer after hearing her only playmate do it with her mother. At first we ignored it, thinking she would stop if we didn't notice it. When it didn't stop we tried various punishments but none have been effective. She 'talks back' only to her Daddy and me, and to her aunt who sometimes stays with her in the evenings (perhaps being her disciplinarians we have unintentionally commanded or nagged her too much.) To everyone else she is very polite.

"We try to make our home one of love and harmony and she has never heard us talk rudely, or raise our voices in anger or argument to one another. We try to divide our affections and attentions, especially between the two children, and they have never shown any signs of jealousy. I enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it."

The Doctor's Answer

I can see how hard you have tried to be a good mother and I am sure you are a far better mother than you think you are. Already you have achieved much. Your kindergarten experience should be of great value to you.

Go on with the same poise you pursued in the kindergarten. Be sure never to talk back to this child. In your efforts to reason with her under great emotional strain you may find yourself practically quarrelling with her.

Carefully study the situations in which she is "sassy." As a result, you may be able to reduce the annoyances to her which arouse this. Once you are very clear about the matter and have disciplined yourself to keep calm and never argue with her, announce to her ingenuitely but decisively that the penalty will be for each offense. Perhaps this penalty should be to sit quietly in one place for exactly 20 minutes. Assign this punishment in a good kindergarten fashion, without anger. (Continued On Page Five)

The World and the Mud Puddles

NOT ENTIRELY BAD.

The remarks of Paul Mallon on the absence of the unanimity among Supreme Court Justices whom President Roosevelt has appointed do not go to the heart of the subject. Complete agreement among the Justices is the truly remarkable thing. It would indicate a really alarming deterioration. The great glory of the court is that, from the beginning, the Justices have felt that they were beholden to no man, not even to the President who names them, and have guided themselves accordingly. Like persons who go to the top of a high hill and see the surrounding features in their true proportion, practically every Justice, soon after he takes his seat on the high bench, sees law or life or society or the nation in new aspects.

Most students of the United States Supreme Court, especially its historians, Charles Warren, and Chief Justice Hughes, have commented on the matter. The latter said of the Justices, after he had been an Associate and before he became Chief: "One cannot study their lives and decisions without confidence in their sincerity and independence." He declared that the Justices' rectitude, purpose, clarity of vision, independence, impartiality and balanced judgment render impotent the solicitation of friends, the appeals of erstwhile political associates and the threats of enemies." Mr. Warren says, among other things, that "nothing is more striking in the history of the Court than the manner in which the hopes of those who expected a Judge to follow the political views of the President appointing him have been disappointed."

One of the latest war stories from the Mediterranean front which is causing a laugh in London deals with an ensign, reporting to his captain.

"A mirage?" cried the captain. "Whatever makes you think that?"

"Well, sir," explained the young officer, "it's headed toward us!"

When his order was placed on the table he looked at the cheese, sniffed and exploded: "Aw, I ordered real old hamburger, that's nothin' but a weak imitation. Take it away!" To which the Dutchman responded: "Auf y'd take dem feet down and gif the cheese a chance, it'd be all right."

It was at the height of a bitter political campaign. The candidate was making an impassioned speech and when he finished he said there would be time for a question period. "Don't worry about that my friend," shouted back the candidate. "If I were the Angel Gabriel you wouldn't be in my district."

Seek To Get Unemployed Men Working
Maximum Output For Defense Desired
Launch Campaign To Register Workers

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, March 24.

Uncle Sam's Office of Production Management recently launched its campaign to get all available defense workers listed with the United States Employment Service more with a view to maximum plant activity than for the actual craftsmen's benefit.

At any rate, it was output that Production Chief William S. Knudsen unquestionably had in mind. Maybe Co-Chief Sidney Hillman, who particularly represents labor in the OPM set-up, was thinking considerably of the registration system's obvious advantages from the standpoint of the workman also. It promises to be an excellent thing for 'em in the long run, anyhow.

The scheme's to get all unemployed workers on the list, likewise to get onto it all workers employed in non-defense industries who have, incidentally, the necessary skills of various sorts, to make 'em useful, by changing jobs, in defense ones.

Of course, each registrant's place of residence, as well as his name, will be recorded. Thus, if a defense manufacturer at Podunk, for instance, needs men and applies to the U. S. Employment Service for 'em, the service will assign them to him from his own immediate neighborhood. He won't have to scout about the country for 'em and they won't have to travel perhaps long distances to report to him for duty.

This will count materially. It's worse than a boiler for a newly hired employee to have to transport himself and his family from one place to another and re-settle in a strange neighborhood. It's a near-impossibility frequently, at present.

Where To Live

Right where he's been living for quite awhile, a workman usually has a home—rented, quite likely, but he's in it and can stay there. But he may not be able to find one at some defense center that he's just trying to move into; such centers are frightfully overcrowded under existing circumstances.

I know personally of a workman in Washington, where he had a job and a peacefully comfortable domicile. Washington crowded to the point of suffocation, too, but this chap was already installed and

In the long view, noting Mr. Hyde's diligent service of American interests during the World War, we get bygonees bygone and think only of the afterglow of an epoch and write off the insurance investigation which while not smirching Mr. Hyde, caused him to seek a more peaceful retreat in Paris.

Back around the turn of the century, Europe was to many of our social and financial careerists not only the fount of culture but a secure domain of the graces of civilized living, of the art of living, in fact.

Furthermore, it was a base of stability and security, of old, unchanging institutions and governments, as contrasted to our still restless and experimental democracy.

To be sure, the government's building houses as fast as it can, for war workers, but it hasn't got 'em yet. That's why OPM is so anxious to avoid enforced migrations of defense-making availables. There's no room for 'em where they're needed.

Eligibles don't register directly with the U. S. Employer Service. They register with the state employment exchanges, but the latter are affiliated with the U. S. service and turn their lists in to it.

OPM's clamor for registrations, then, at today's juncture, is to facilitate defensive production, and the howl for workers is due to gain volume as the program progresses.

As yet the famine for craftsmen is only local, as at places like Norfolk, but it's a safe bet that it'll become national and a deal more acute not more than comparatively a few weeks hence.

After The War—Ultimately, though, the war and defense activity will peter out, the jobs they're providing will peter out by the millions and Uncle Sam will have unemployment on his hands again, wholesale.

But this next time he'll have a

A Good Plan

Work out a plan with your husband whereby you follow the same procedure. If one of you deals with her misconduct let the other then be silent.

See that the baby lets this older child's things alone and respects her rights and possessions. Don't make older sister give up to younger but praise her when she does. Be careful not to praise the younger for traits and achievements the older lacks. Never compare them unfavorably. Try to see that relatives don't. In spite of what you say, jealousy is a big factor. It may be the biggest contribution to her behavior. Do show the older child more affection.

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, March 24.—John Higgins, Jr., chairman of the public utility commission, and former state representative and Republican chairman of Warren county, soon will be reappointed to a full 10-year term, it was predicted today in administration circles.

Siggins, an attorney, a year ago was named chairman by Gov. Arthur H. James following the resignation of Denis J. Driscoll, a Democrat. He became a member of the P. U. C. on May 15, 1939 to fill the unexpired term of Guy K. Bard, now a U. S. district judge for eastern Pennsylvania.

The chairman's term expires one week from today. Whether the governor will make the reappointment during the 1941 legislative session could not be learned. In event he is reappointed soon, Siggins will face confirmation by the senate.

Republicans control the commission by a three to two majority. In addition to Siggins are B. Frank Morgel, Harrisburg, and Ralph W. Thorne, Williamsport, Richard J. Beamish, Philadelphia, and Thomas C. Buchanan, Beaver, remaining members, are Democrats.

Declares British Will Fight Until Victory Over Hitler Is Won

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
NEW YORK, March 24.—England is not going to quit.

She is not going to compromise. She is not going to debate, parley or argue.

She is going to fight until victory is won, or until all hope of victory is past.

Just over 40 years ago, the aged Queen Victoria looked over her glasses at Statesman Arthur Balfour in the small audience room at Windsor castle when he came down from London to bring news of a British defeat in the Boer war.

"There is no depression in this house," she said.

"We are not interested in the possibilities of defeat, because they do not exist."

British Determined

The old queen's words today epitomize the spirit of 47 million English people as they move into the second spring of World War II.

They stare at you in England from movie screens, from the walks of London "pubs" and humble village inns, from telephone booths, from the inside of the great red-painted London buses.

They are as much a part of the England of today as is Winston Churchill. They are the premier's favorite quotation in private, and his constant encouragement when things look grim. They have formed

FOUR CHILDREN DROWN AT IRWIN

Crash Through Ice On Pond While Seeking To Retrieve Their Kite

(International News Service)
IRWIN, Pa., March 24.—The first warm winds of spring spelled tragedy today for John Kustra, W. P. A. worker, who lives about a mile from nearby Herminie.

Four of his children were drowned Sunday afternoon when they rushed out on a frozen pond to retrieve a kite, and crashed through the thin ice. They ranged in age from five to nine years.

State police and district firemen pulled their bodies from the water, and a Greensburg fire crew tried unsuccessfully for two and one-half hours to resuscitate them. The children were trapped in water 7 to 10 feet deep some distance from the shore.

Those who were drowned were Mary, 9; John, Jr., 7; Peter, 6; and Anna, 5. A playmate, who had watched them fly their kite from a nearby slag pile, saw them plunge through the ice and called for help.

Terrorist Outbreak Occurs At Shanghai

Nine Are Dead And 60 Wounded As Gunmen Bomb Three Banks

(International News Service)
SHANGHAI, March 24.—The toll of Shanghai's worst recent terrorist outbreak reached nine dead and 60 wounded late today after gunmen bombed three banks.

A fourth bank narrowly escaped destruction when two huge bombs were discovered by police who removed their fuses.

The outbreak of terrorism was the newest and bloodiest chapter in the feud between bankers representing the Chinese regime and those acting for the Japanese-sponsored government of Wang Ching-wei.

All the banks bombed today were affiliated with the Chiang Kai Shek government, who had sworn earlier to avenge the abduction of more than 100 employees of the banks with which it was doing business.

Of those injured in today's blasts, many were expected to die. The Central bank on Burbling Well road in the heart of the international settlement was hardest hit. Located over an American-owned garage, the bank was almost completely demolished. Walls and windows were blown out and passersby below were buried in debris. At least 40 persons were injured there alone.

High School Boy Commits Suicide

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, March 24.—Douglas Schang, 19-year-old Snowden township high school senior, fatally wounded himself with a shot through the heart Saturday after leaving a note explaining that he was "tired of living," police said.

The youth and his parents had attended a farewell party for the youth's cousin, Robert Mathias, 21, under orders to report to a military camp. The youth left the party early and his parents found his body later.

A revolver lay nearby. In an unsigned note to his mother, the boy said:

"I love you with all my heart. Please don't feel bad for what I have done for I'm tired of living so I think that would be the best way out."

FUGITIVE IS RECAPTURED BY STATE POLICE

(International News Service)
McCONNELLSBURG, Pa., March 24.—Brice Hann, 65, who escaped Wednesday from the Allegheny county workhouse in Pittsburgh, was recaptured Saturday by state police.

Hann was acquitted some months ago for the killing of a state motor policeman in Fulton county, but was convicted of carrying concealed deadly weapons. Police picked him up at his son's home in McConnellsburg.

Bethlehem Tense Over Strike Threat

Walkout May Develop At Plant According To C. I. O. Assertions

(International News Service)
BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 24.—Tension preceding a major labor fight gripped this steel town today as the steel workers organizing committee, CIO, poised to call a walkout which may tie up $1,185,000,000 in defense orders at the huge Bethlehem Steel company plant.

Signal for a walkout of a majority of the firm's 24,000 employees, S. W. O. C. officials declared, would be the appearance of flag-draped ballot boxes for election of officers of Bethlehem's employees' representation plan.

Bethlehem police chief Ernest Stocker declared he had mobilized his "entire force of 60 men and we are prepared for any emergency." But J. M. Larkin, Bethlehem vice president, asserted: "We will discuss the problem when we come to it."

"There will be a strike," announced Clarke Appleby, S. W. O. C. spokesman, "the minute they bring out their ballot boxes." He charged the election was illegal because the national labor relations board had declared the E. R. P. a "company union" and ordered it to disband.

Bethlehem steel has appealed the NLRB order against the employees' representation plan and, pending final disposition of the case, ERP officials asserted their organization was duly constituted and qualified

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

USE OF THREATS NEVER WISE IN DISCIPLINING THE CHILD

It has been my observation that no disciplinary measures are effective unless there are corresponding rewards for good behavior. Too many parents, I have found, think only of controlling the child through punishments and threats of punishment, and neglect encouragement of better habits through praise for good deeds.

No one, old or young, likes to be punished. Every one likes praise. Yet many homes in which Johnny or Mary is punished for getting a new suit or dress dirty or torn, his or her achievement in keeping unusually clean and presentable all day under difficulties is accepted as a matter of course, and no reward such as a commendatory mention to Daddy when he gets home, an additional penny allowance or a little surprise like an extra portion of dessert, is offered. In encouraging the child in tidiness, the latter is as persuasive as the former and is of course, better for the nerves and temper of both adult and child.

Both punishments and rewards, to be really effective, must be immediate. The child always lives in the present. A pat on the head or a penny now means more to him than a promise of a new toy or a trip to the movies Saturday. And punishment must be applied sufficiently near the offense so the child mind can always definitely connect the two, or he may lose any sense of guilt, in which case the punishment will seem unjust and implant resentment.

I believe the best disciplinarian never uses any threats. If the child commits an act for which punishment is deserved, it should be made to understand its error and punished then and there. If the parent isn't disposed to discipline the child for the act, after making the error understandable to the child, he or she shouldn't issue any of the extravagant warnings about punishments in the future that you so often hear in homes.

A good many of these threats are, of course, never carried out. The child quickly takes notice of this fact, and their value as disciplinary measures is lost. Or the parent, in making the threats while angry, may go further in describing what he'll do than he ever would. In such case, if the child has had a severe punishment from the parent before, it may take the threat too literally and live in nervous fear. I was called to see a child suffering from night terrors. I found he was alright physically, but was very nervous and wasn't interested in food. His mother was in the room and I sensed the child was upset about his mother in some way.

I managed to speak to the child alone and then I found what was the matter. The mother had lately started threatening to send him away from her anytime he did anything she didn't like. She would announce that she didn't love him any more. The child, who had always been a sort of "mama's boy" had naturally become emotionally upset.

When I told her what I thought was wrong with her boy, she broke down and cried. But I don't think she altogether believed me after she had thought it over a bit. However, she took my advice and stopped making such threats. In a few weeks he was alright again.

Young children normally value the affection of the parents above everything else and when they have lost it, their whole world crashes. His mother's and father's love is the youngster's foundation for everything. That is why so much depends on the attitude of the parent to the child.

Starlings Victors In Capitol Bout

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, March 24.—The starlings Saturday were the victors in the first round of a battle for possession of choice aerial roosts at the state capitol.

War was declared by the state motor police and an army of one, namely Private Walter A. Wise, armed with a double-barreled shotgun, mobilized to combat the jabbering threat.

The battle lasted 45 minutes. When it ended approximately two dozen starlings were casualties, but hundreds more noisily held possession of the state capitol and surrounding territory. Private Wise, undaunted, said he would try again to repel the invasion.

A big crowd watched the battle.

Like a fire horse that rears to go when he smells smoke, a volunteer fireman rears up at the sound of an alarm or the rumor of a fire.

Andrew M. Dodds, deputy controller, proved the idea Friday night when he attended the fish fry of the Ellwood Rod and Gun Club.

While he was eating dinner, somebody whispered to Andy that a fire was on in New Castle. He left the table, dashed over to New Castle, worked on the fire at the Turner block and then on to the fire near the old country club. After both fires were under control he went back to Ellwood City and finished his dinner.

Mayor Charles B. Mayne, Police Chief Willis McMullen and County Treasurer Earl R. Wimer all left for New Castle when the fire was reported.

A short session of desertion and non-support court was held Saturday morning by Judge Charles Matthews, Jr.

Rowland Again Denies Rumor

Once again, on Saturday the "Rowland Resigns" rumor gained some prominence when it was said that Captain Roger W. Rowland, secretary of property and supplies in the cabinet of Governor Arthur H. James had resigned. And once again Captain Rowland scotched the rumor but this time in a vigorous fashion.

Said Captain Rowland, "The rumor that I have resigned is absolute without foundation. I have said before and I repeat, that as long as I am able to arrange my private affairs to permit me to serve in the cabinet of Governor Arthur H. James I will not resign. My affairs are in such shape at the present time as to permit me to continue to help Governor James in the good job he is doing for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Damaged Vessel At Chester Dock

(International News Service)

CHESTER, Pa., March 24.—Shelled by a marauding submarine, the British freighter Narraugansett is at the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock company, Chester, undergoing repairs.

With its movements shrouded in greatest secrecy, the vessel arrived at Chester a week ago for a war cargo, it was revealed. Its deck had been raked and the captain's cabin destroyed by the attack, but the location or time of the assault were not divulged.

Dr. V. L. Martin was taken aboard at Marcus Hook to treat crew members, but it was explained the seamen were ill and had not been wounded by the submarine's fire.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine are important names.

So are sulfathiazole, sulfaguanidine and sulfadiazine.

These are the new drugs used in many infectious diseases. Much publicity has attended the new sulphur derivatives.

They were hailed as the "wonder drugs" for certain ailments. Yet their indiscriminate use was decried by medical men.

There has been much to be studied and learned about them.

How are these drugs absorbed, distributed, excreted in the body? Some patients react unfavorably to this new chemical therapy.

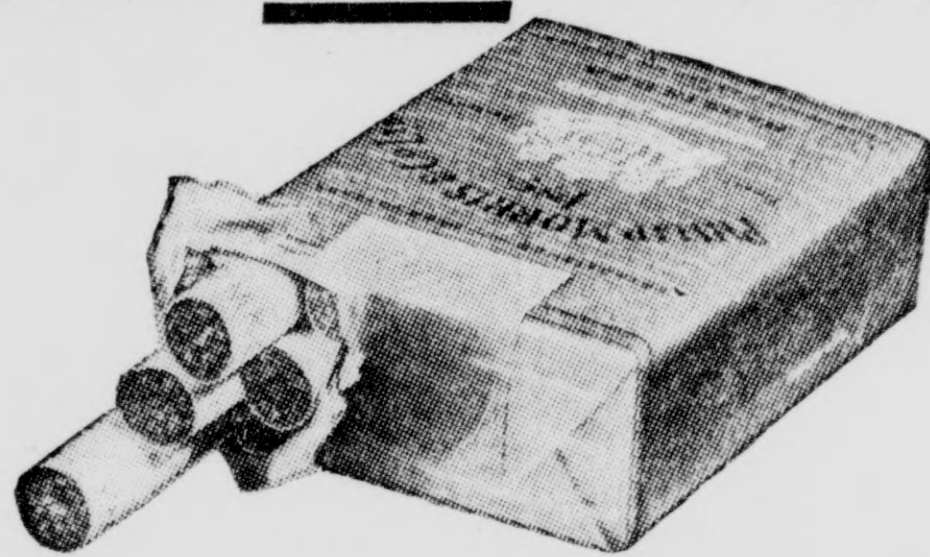

Sulfanilamide is the best known of the five compounds.

But it may not be effective in some cases for certain infections.

Only the right drug in the right amount for the right infection is safe.

Continuing where the article printed last week stopped, Captain Andersen tells of the character building and religious activities of the local Salvation Army Corps, in the following article.

The character building activities of the Army are built around four main groups, namely: the musical organization, young peoples' clubs, girls' clubs and boys' clubs. Each has its distinctive piece of work to be done.

The musical group is one that is quite fascinating and one that needs a lot of patience. There are many young people that are musically inclined but have neither the instruments nor the money to get the necessary instruction. We loan these youngsters instruments and give free lessons. Beginning with the very fundamental essentials the young student is gradually tutored until many of them are able to play with ease, some of the more difficult tunes.

The lack of instruments handicaps us somewhat in this program but at the present time we have 15 students who practice and receive lessons weekly.

The young peoples' clubs are quite in their infancy in this city, although in other cities there are located some rather large buildings devoted entirely to the youth problem. We have two rooms set aside for the young peoples' clubs and these two groups meet weekly and conduct their own activities. It is hoped that in the near future there will be added three more rooms at the local Corps building, for this same purpose.

The boys and girls are in reality a segregation of the above group. After the group has learned the fundamentals of club activity they usually want to form into a group that is in a definite group, and this tends to establish the various clubs. To belong to these groups, it is not necessary to be a member of The Salvation Army, as membership is open to all who care to join.

The religious work of the Army in reality means all the work that the Army tries to accomplish as everything is done with a view of bringing before the public the one factor, that is we do all these things for the upbuilding of the Lord's work.

The pastoral visitation is somewhat as any pastor would do, except that from time to time we go from house to house and to places where we figure no one else is apt to be visiting and try to get the people to go to church.

We always try to get the people to go to the church of their choice and if they have no church affiliation we then invite them to our services.

Our Sunday school is conducted by qualified leaders and in the same manner as the average church. We have our own lesson material furnished by our headquarters in New York City. "The Young Soldier" is our weekly Sunday school paper and it contains the Scripture story for the week and various stories that are of interest to youth.

The religious meetings at the Army house are divided into three groups. The soldiers meeting, which is an instructive meeting for members of recent converts, is also open to the public. The Salvation meetings are held twice a week for the purpose of spreading the gospel and the conversion of sinners and the holiness meeting for the deeper spiritual experiences. The local corps has some activity scheduled every evening except Saturday and the officer and his wife devote all their time in the work here.

State Legislature Convening For Eleventh Week

Deadline Near On New Measures

Over 1300 Bills And Resolutions Have Already Been Introduced

FARM AND LABOR

BILLS IN SPOTLIGHT

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, March 24.—As the General Assembly convened today for its 11th week of deliberations, reports were current that a deadline on bills may soon be set in the House and perhaps in the Senate.

Approximately 1300 bills and resolutions have already been introduced, close to 1000 in the House and the remainder in the Senate. Most of the administration measures are already in and the few remaining bills will probably be introduced this week.

Once a deadline is set, no member will be able to introduce a bill without unanimous consent.

Head Agenda

Important farm and labor legislation headed the Agenda as the legislature reassembled for another three-day session. The new Democratic milk control bill was scheduled to be reported out of committee, as was the Democratic bill repealing the 1939 Republican-enacted amendments to the state labor relations act. Both were expected to stir up a bitter fight, but the Democratic majority has the votes to pass it over opposition.

In the Senate the Edmonds home rule bill and the House-approved Moul-Wooding milk regulation measure held the center of the stage. The Edmonds bill is in the hands of the municipal government committee, which held a public hearing on it last Tuesday, while the agriculture committee has the controversial House measure.

A bill to legalize Sunday bowling may be passed by the House tonight and forwarded to the Senate for concurrence. It is now on third reading.

House majority Leader Leo A. Achteman, of Monroe, expects his concurrent resolution for a legislative investigation of the 10 state medical hospitals in the coal regions to pass the House this week.

A bi-partisan committee of six would be created to handle the probe. Gov. Arthur H. James has stated he is prepared to cooperate. A bill appropriating $10,000 to finance the investigation will be introduced in the House by Achteman this week.

WARREN, O., March 24.—James Sproule of Youngstown died Sunday, second victim of a Tuesday train wreck at Windham, near the army's Ravenna shell-loading plant, caused when a fast freight train plowed into a passenger train carrying 764 workmen.

More than 200 workmen were injured in the wreck, and J. C. Basch, 40, of Youngstown, died Friday of his injuries.

Biggest users of sugar are the 18,000 bakeries in the U. S., census figures showing their yearly sugar consumption to be more than a billion and a quarter pounds.

Every Worker Should Make Certain Employer Has Security Number

Every worker who has deductions made from his wages for old-age and survivors insurance under the Social Security Act should see to it that each employer he works for has a record of his name and his social security account number just as they are shown on his account number card.

That is the first step he must take to make certain that the Social Security Board has a full record of his wages earned in employment covered by this insurance system. The board keeps a record of his wages in order to determine the amount of his monthly retirement benefits after age 65, or his family's benefits in case of his death. Therefore, it is important that every day's pay be credited to his social security account.

Each worker's account has a number—the same number that is on the account number card issued to him by the Social Security Board. The employer reports the worker's wages to the Social Security Board using the name and number the worker gives him. If these are not exactly as shown on the worker's account number card, the Social Security Board cannot credit his wages to his account until the error can be corrected. The best plan for the worker to follow is to show his account card to each employer he works for so that his name and account number will be taken down just as they are on the card.

Each worker can properly have only one social security account number. Any worker who has received more than one account number should get in touch with his local Social Security Board office and find out if all his past wages have been recorded in one account. He should also find out which number he should use in the future. A worker whose account number card is lost or worn out should get a new card (with the same number) at his Social Security Board office. There is no charge for duplicate cards.

'Pre-Easter Advance' Attendance Spurs

The favorable weather of the fifth Sunday of the "Pre-Easter Advance" resulted in a veritable shower of points as 18 of the 20 participating Sunday schools in the four, New Castle, groups have accumulated points to date.

The First Presbyterian Sunday school continued its forward progress with its best attendance to date—496 in attendance, which is 141 more present than the average attendance for 1940, and a total of 391 points to date. They are the only Sunday school in Lawrence county that has shown a gain every one of the five Sundays of the campaign to date over the preceding Sunday. Their attendance record for the campaign is indeed a remarkable one.

In the first, New Castle, group, the Third United Presbyterian Sunday school is in the lead with a total of 263 points. The Third United Presbyterian had the highest average attendance for 1940—566—and Sunday, March 16, they had an attendance of 665 or 99 points for that Sunday, and yesterday they had an attendance of 665—or a gain of 97 points for yesterday. They are well organized, are working hard and have set an ambitious goal for Easter Sunday.

In the Third, New Castle, group the Maitland and Memorial Primitive Methodist is in the lead and in the Fourth, New Castle, group, the St. John's Lutheran Sunday school is in the lead.

In the Sunday schools outside of New Castle, the Mt. Jackson district shows the Besemer Presbyterian leading with 50 points and in the Wampum district the Moravia Presbyterian is leading with 19 points. More complete county reports will be run later in the week.

The Second U. P. Sunday school is still leading in the percentage of those attending Sunday school who remained for church to date, and the Highland United Presbyterian Sunday school is in second place. The following are the church attendance standings to date:

This project was commenced February 7, 1940. There was 1100 feet of sanitary sewer concrete pipe, 36 inch diameter, laid in the bed of the Run, from the foot of Lyndal street to Jefferson street bridge to join with the sewer at that point.

Work on the north wall of the river bed commenced in October, and work continued all winter.

The new location of the river bed, will be about fifty feet south of Big Run street, and the old bed is being rapidly filled up, and a large portion of ground is being reclaimed.

The large stones being used to build these rip-rap walls, are being brought from the city owned quarry, near East Brook Road, and prepared by the workmen on the site.

There were 115 men working on a South Side WPA project Saturday, which consists of making a channel for Big Run, sixty-five feet wide, from the Jefferson street bridge to Galbreath avenue, with a wall on either side.

This wall has been completed seven feet high, on the north side for a distance of 1500 lineal feet. It has been decided to add another three feet, making the wall ten feet high, which with good weather, will be finished in six weeks.

James Shaughnessy, time keeper, states that, weather permitting, work on the south wall will commence in two weeks.

This wall has been completed seven feet high, on the north side for a distance of 1500 lineal feet. It has been decided to add another three feet, making the wall ten feet high, which with good weather, will be finished in six weeks.

James Shaughnessy, time keeper, states that, weather permitting, work on the south wall will commence in two weeks.

This project was commenced February 7, 1940. There was 1100 feet of sanitary sewer concrete pipe, 36 inch diameter, laid in the bed of the Run, from the foot of Lyndal street to Jefferson street bridge to join with the sewer at that point.

Work on the north wall of the river bed commenced in October, and work continued all winter.

Charge Youth With Terrorizing Four Auto Riders

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, March 24.—Stephen Tuscan, Jr., 23-year-old Chester, Pa., locomotive shop worker, was being held for court today on a charge of terrorizing three women passengers and a chauffeur in a private car Saturday night.

Police said the youth, brandishing what later turned out to be a toy gun, jumped into a private automobile as it stopped in the downtown section for a traffic light, threatened the occupants and forced them to drive him to Oakland. He took the chauffeur's wallet and some change from the women occupants, police added.

Tuscan was reported to have told Mrs. Lester Wilson, and two companions, when he jumped into the car: "Drive me to Homestead or I'll let you have it. I've just escaped from prison."

In police court, Tuscan said he "had a few drinks and don't know myself why I did such a thing." He said he was visiting a sister in Etta, where he used to live.

Giants Outlook Is Not Very Promising

Manager Bill Terry Did Not Rebuild Much From His 1940 Mediocre Team

Lot Depends On Condition Of Billy Jurges Injured Shortstop, Pitchers Just Fair

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor
MIAMI, Fla., March 24.—No longer making even the slightest pretense of trying to recapture the tradition and prestige that John McGraw left behind, the New York Giants this season seem to be engaged only in a struggle to escape the ignominy of a seventh or eighth place finish in the National League pennant race. They haven't hit the cellar since 1915, but the clubs trend may have been convincingly indicated last year. Mid-summer will tell.

Having won pennants in 1936 and 1937 largely because of the pitching of Carl Hubbell, the Giants began to skid with Hubbell in 1938, and steadily have gone on downward—to third place, then to fifth, then to 1940's sixth.

Not Much Rebuilding

Little has been done to rebuild, and it won't take long to tell whether Owner Horace Stoneham and Manager Bill Terry are prophets in their insistence that they have the makings of a stout club, or whether they have become permanent devotees to that old and revered baseball custom of whistling through the graveyard.

They lack stand-out pitchers, probably won't have too much punch, and will have to accomplish their commendable aims, if any, with fair fielding. They will play a catcher, Hank Danning, in the outfield and seem resigned to getting little or no help from their best fielder, Shortstop Billy Jurges, who has never completely recovered from being hit in the head by a pitch last June.

Does the foregoing sound like a first division club, or one chanceing that a forlorn hope will somehow become a reality? Putting it another way, it looks as though the Philadelphia Phillies may have a tussle on their hands to maintain their rights to the cellar.

Games Tuesday In Tournament

Gersons To Battle Old Furnace Quintet In Class A Game At 7:30 O'Clock

PULASKI JAYVEES TO PLAY SCORPIONS

Two games will be played Tuesday night in the Fourth Annual City-County basketball tournament at the George Washington High floor. In the first game at 7:30 o'clock the Gerson team battles the Old Furnace Five. In the second game the K. Pulaski Jayvees battle the Scorpions.

The first game should be a crackerjack of a contest all the way. Coach John Ruben is more than confident that his Old Furnace team can defeat the Gersons. The Old Furnace team is made up of former East Brook High stars. Plenty of Stars

The Gersons will have such well known stars of New Castle High fame as: Al Bucci, Parou, Johnny Cabas, and independent stars as, Nickie Gennoek, Sammy Bullano and Pete Zingaro. The Gersons-Old Furnace game will be a match-up of Saturday night in the finals with the Falcons. The Gersons have eliminated the Gus' Collegians, and the Old Furnace trimmed the K. Pulaski Big Five in the first round. The Class B game will be a fine one also, the K. Pulaski Jayvees recent conquerors of the Wabash Bears and the Princeton Big Five will battle hard to defeat the Scorpions who have eliminated but one team, Bessemer Indies.

The New Castle Music Council is going to realize a nice sum of money from the tourney this year. It was announced by the committee headed by Anthony R. Conn as general chairman.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Fish Warden Clinton B. White was along the streams yesterday watching for possible violations of the fishing laws. After visiting the Little Neshannock creek, Deer Creek and other trout streams he travelled along the Shenango river and the writer met him in the vicinity of Pulaski. White said trout streams had two more consignments announced this week. At 10:30 a. m. March 25, a tank filled with rainbow trout will arrive at the New Wilmington post-office and at 10 a. m. March 29, another tank filled with brown trout will arrive at the same place. The latter consignment will be placed in Deer and Hickory creeks, White announced. Sportsmen are requested to be present to help distribute the fish.

There will be no boxing here tonight. However, a heavyweight bout is on tap in Pittsburgh. Curtis Sheppard and Lee Murray will box 10 rounds. The N. B. A. in listing fighters, moved Bill Conn among the heavyweights and regards Anton Christoforidis as the light-heavyweight champion. Bel- active to Joe Louis, the organization claims there are no "logical contenders" Max Baer, Conn and Lou Nova are listed as "outstanding heavies". Abe Simon is included in the first 11 heavyweights. Byron Nelson won the Greensboro, N. C. Open yesterday with an aggregate of 276, six under par. Duquesne and Luzerne came through in their quarter-final PIAA elimination basketball games against Mahoning City and Bradford and are favored to defeat Lower Merion and Sharpville for the East and West championships, Tuesday at Harrisburg.

Niles takes hometown fighters seriously; in fact, bestows honor upon them when they give advertisement to the town. For instance, more than 200 fans, business men and civil leaders of Niles, paid tribute to George "Sonny" Horne, high school boy who won the Youngstown, Cleveland and Chicago welterweight amateur boxing championships recently at a testimonial dinner. Hosts were the members of the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce. . . . Indications point to an outdoor arena here this summer, providing, of course, that plans now tentative grow up. Tommy Leach may help the Farrell Boosters club this summer by arranging some of their matches. . . . Tom McMahon, a local voter, has not referred here yet this year. He did not take out a referee's license. . . . Next boxing show will be staged in the Arena one week from tonight. If Frankie Moran's hip can be rid of soreness he will get an assignment. Frankie was one of the best amateur fighters this city had. He won and lost. However, in his latest fights some fans "rode" him (why, no one apparently knows) and he got off the cards. Frankie can show a lot of these more exploited chaps aces. He hits with either hand, is tough and never stalls.

Athletics Hoping To Climb Out Of Cellar

Have Improved Infield This Season, Expect To Battle Top Teams All The Way

Pitching Staff Not Quite As Strong As Some Of Teams, But Nevertheless Ambitious

International News Service
NEW YORK, March 24.—Finals of the national invitational inter-collegiate basketball tournament, bringing together Ohio University and the University of Long Island, today is expected to attract the largest crowd that ever packed Madison Square Garden for a cage contest. A crowd of nearly 19,000 was anticipated.

The Long Island quintet ruled favorite to capture the championship. The title fight will follow a contest between Seton Hall and City College of New York for third place.

Ohio reached the pay-off round with a 45-43 victory over City College, Long Island upset Seton Hall, 49 to 26, and ended the Setonians 43-game winning streak.

Brand New Infield

In what department are the A's most improved? You answer that one quickly.

The infield!

Mack cleaned house. He got rid of infielders Bill Lillard, Joe Gombert, Al Rubeling, Bill Nagel and Dario Lodigiani, to name a few.

And to make things virtually complete, Benny McCoy, last season's $60,000 second base beauty, who cracked under the strain of publicity and fan pressure, has been demoted to the role of substitute.

Mack has built a fresh infield around Dick Siebert, who is quite acceptable in any company at first base. The boss beams with confidence as he watches 20-year-old Lawrence (Crash) Davis at second and 24-year-old Fred Chapman at shortstop.

And at third, you'll find the toast of the Athletics—23-year-old Peter Suter, drafted from Kansas City.

"I'll stake my judgement on Suter. He's a natural third baseman with all the earmarks of a great star," commented Mack.

Last season in left, Sam Chapman in center and Wally Moses in right figures to remain intact. It was the best department in the 1940 club.

Outfield replacements probably will be Wilson Miles, Al Simmons and Eddie Collins Jr., who was recalled from Toronto where he turned in a .976 fielding job and hit at a .293 clip.

Just Fair Pitchers

The three best pitchers with the Athletics last season—Johnny Babiach, Bill Beckman and Nelson Potter—likely will continue as such. But additional cunning twirling is expected from "Chubby" Dean Chalmer Harris, Jack Knott, formerly with the Chicago White Sox, and Lee Ross of last year's staff, with Paul Machillon, up from Toronto, likely to make the grade.

The catching staff is quite formidable, headed by Frankie Hayes, Herold Wagner and Earle Brucker, all holdovers from last year.

Give the Athletics the infield stability this summer that they have displayed this spring, let other departments hold their own, then Philadelphia's 30 per cent better team.

Greeks-Mahoning In Feature Game At "Y" Tonight

St. George Greeks Have Chance To Cop Class A Championship With Victory

The "Y" floor tonight will be the mecca for followers of the New Castle church basketball league where in the final game on the night's card the Greek St. George team will battle the Mahoning Methodist team in a championship game.

If the Greeks led by Coach "Manny" Othites can defeat the Seventh Warders tonight they will be the Class A champions without dispute, but if they lose and the Central Christians win from the St. Marys team, there will be a three-way tie for the second-half title. The Greek boys won the first half championship. This will be the best game of the season, no doubt. Both teams will fight to the last ditch for the title.

In the first game the Central Christians meet the St. Marys team at 7:45 o'clock. The second game will find the Second U. P. and Croton teams battling.

The games tonight will close the church league for the 1941 season. The league began play last November.

The Wabash Bears basketball team went to the tournament at Farrell last Friday night and were defeated by the Farrell Ex-High Stars 31 to 27 in a well played game. The Farrell team was made up of the same boys who played against New Castle this year. The New Wilmington team also was eliminated in the first round by one-point.

St. Michaels Lose Second-Half Title

Drop First Game Of Season In Slovak League Sunday To Cy-Mes, Will Have Playoff

The New Castle St. Michaels team lost to the Cy-Me team in a Slovak league game at Youngstown yesterday, giving the Cy-Me team the second-half championship. It was the first defeat of the league season for the locals. The score was 46 to 34.

Playing without the services of their star Johnny "Rookie" Carr, who was called by Uncle Sam for army duty, the St. Michaels did not seem to have the zip that they generally do. At the half the "Mikes" led 17 to 15, but faltered in the second half.

The playoff game will be next Sunday. The St. Michaels team, having won the first-half championship, will be the defending champions.

Tribute Is Given To Aetna-Standard In Ceremonies Saturday

ELLWOOD CITY, March 24.—Uncle Sam got a present from Ellwood City Saturday morning. Not such a present as you might mount on the living room bookcase, but a present that will come in mighty handy if your Uncle ever has to pop a few enemy bombs. For the present was a 37 mm. anti-aircraft gun carriage, the M-1 650 such carriages which are now manufactured by the Aetna-Standard Engineering company for the United States army.

The surprise part of the present was not the gun carriage itself, but the fact that it was completed one month before scheduled contract time, completed to the satisfaction of the United States army ordnance department and its corps of eagle-eyed technicians.

Snappy Exercises
For the presentation a program that was short and snappy was held in the huge assembly room of the Aetna-Standard. Flags and bunting hung down from the girders of the building, and near the speakers' stand were two 37 mm. anti-aircraft guns. On the speakers' platform were high ranking officers of the ordnance department, officers of the Aetna-Standard and a few guests.

At 11:15 the Ellwood City high school band opened a 15-minute concert, directed by Paul Winter. Leading the band into the assembly room was a color guard of the Wilbur Randolph post, American Legion. Composing the guard were Elmer Greenham, color bearer; Dan Evans, standard bearer, and Jack Graham, S. R. Berstler, D. E. Cain, Delmont Holbein, Charles Baird and J. R. Little as a guard of honor.

The program was under the direction of Lt. Col. W. W. Golden, manager of the ordnance division of the Aetna-Standard. The first speaker was F. B. Bell, district chief of the ordnance department of the Pittsburgh district. Said Mr. Bell:

"This meeting today is composed of the men who were responsible for the manufacture of this 37 mm gun carriage one month ahead of scheduled time. Representing the ordnance department, I want to recognize the good work done by the organization and the employees and the sub-contractors responsible for this. This sort of thing is a cross-section of what America hopes for. In the construction of this gun carriage there is represented the co-operative work of 225 sub-contractors, along with the men and management of this company. This is the kind of co-operation that produces what America needs in time of peril. Because all of the men and companies have done their work well, we are able to hold this celebration today.

"Have you any idea of what the job means? This gun carriage is one of 36,000 articles needed by our government in the event of a war. To produce them when they are needed calls for co-operation among us all. We are very proud of the achievement of the Aetna-Standard Engineering company. It is this sort of thing that is America's answer to the dictators' statement that a democracy cannot win a war."

Presents Gun Carriage
Mr. Bell then introduced Ernest E. Schwartz, president of the Aetna-Standard Engineering company, who said: "We appreciate the fine work that has been done in the production of this gun carriage ahead of time. We want to go farther and faster and we will try to do an even better job. In behalf of the Aetna-Standard Engineering company, I present this gun carriage to the ordnance department."

For the ordnance department, Lt. Col. Hugh C. Minton, responded. Said he: "Upon behalf of the ordnance department I accept this fine gun carriage. Because of pressure of official business, Major-General C. M. Wesson, chief of ordnance in Washington, was unable to be here today, and it is my privilege to represent him."

The Aetna-Standard company has set a fine example of what can be done in the delivery of this gun carriage ahead of time. Other companies have made deliveries ahead of time, but there are some who are lagging behind.

"The national defense program looks to Pennsylvania for a large part of its equipment. We are preparing a potential army of two million men and we need supplies and equipment. It is a pleasure to see the co-operation that has made this gun carriage possible today."

On to Pittsburgh
Following the exercises the Ellwood high school band led a parade of cars downtown, and later the gun carriage was taken into Pittsburgh, where it was to be turned over to the Gage laboratories of Carnegie Tech. By tonight it may be at the Aberdeen proving grounds in Maryland.

In one end of the assembly room a temporary refectory was set up and sandwiches and coffee provided for all who wished to partake. A luncheon was served later for the officers and officials of the company present.

For the ceremony the plant was shut down for an hour. Skilled mechanics left their lathes and planers and boring mills, office help laid aside their pens and all of them gathered in the assembly room. Altogether there were between 700 and 800 men and women present.

Efficient Looking
The completed gun carriage is an efficient looking piece of armament. The gun itself is a slender, graceful thing, reminding one of a fine blooded racing horse. In size it is 37 millimeters, or about one and one-half inches. In weight the projectile it will hurl is one and a half pounds, and the gun is effective at 20,000 feet vertically or 28,000 feet horizontally. The carriage is mounted on rubber tires and can be moved about at high speed. The weight of the carriage is about 4,000 pounds, and the gun itself about 1,000 pounds.

Two Convictions In Insurance-Murder Cases Are Upheld

State Supreme Court Grants New Trial To Third Convicted Person

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, March 24.—The state supreme court today upheld the convictions and sentences of two central figures in Philadelphia's sensational "murder-for-insurance" case but spared a third, Mrs. Grace Giocannetti, from the electric chair by granting her a new trial.

The high court ruled that both Herman Petrillo, condemned to die for the slaying of Raffael Caruso in 1934, and Carmella Giocannetti, sentenced to life imprisonment for the arsenic murder of her husband in 1932, were properly tried and convicted.

But in the case of Mrs. Giocannetti, who was convicted and sentenced to die for the arsenic death of her first husband, Pietro Pirilli, on April 21, 1935, the supreme court reversed the lower court and granted her a new trial.

Pirilli's death at first had been attributed to heart trouble. When his body was exhumed, as in the case of Mrs. Giocannetti, traces of arsenic poisoning were found.

Antonio Giocannetti died on April 22, 1932, and his body was not exhumed until May, 1939, when the arsenic evidence was uncovered. Mrs. Giocannetti appealed the death sentence imposed on her, citing 31 assignments of error in her trial. The court, however, upheld the sentence.

Justice George W. Moxey signed the 21-page Petrillo opinion, which was concurred in by Justices Drew and Linn.
